The publication of this edition of the Catalogue has been delayed by the constant arrival of interesting articles sent in after the original portion of the work had gone to press.

The proceeds of the exhibition are to be devoted to the general fund of the Philadelphia Centennial.

Exhibition of Revolutionary Relics in Boston.

THE Committee appointed by the Ladies' Centennial Commission of Boston to arrange for a temporary and special museum of relics of the Revolutionary period of 1775, having accepted the house 56 Beacon Street, kindly tendered them for this object, propose to open it on the 14th of June, to continue one week.

Persons having in their possession such relics are earnestly requested to lend them to this interesting exhibition. Portraits of distinguished patriots or loyalists, arms, furniture, clothing, china, silver or glass ware, or ornaments will be gratefully received. Autograph letters or documents of the period are also desired. From the number of such objects known to exist it is believed that this exhibition can be made both attractive and instructive, and, as it is the first of the kind in Boston, it should be of such a character as to assume historic importance.

Glass cases will be provided, securely fastened, and the whole collection will be under the constant supervision of the Committee with special and trusty custodians both day and night. The house will be open in the day-time only, and neither gas nor fire will be allowed upon the premises. Persons disposed to aid the project of the Committee will please notify Dr. Samuel A. Green, Massachusetts Historical Society, 30 Tremont Street, or any of the Committee, or to the Centennial Rooms, State House. Such notice should be given promptly, as it is important to complete the arrangements before the day of opening. The fire-proof vaults of Messrs. Bigelow, Kennard, & Co. are at the disposal of the Committee for the reception and deposit of such valuable objects as may be immediately tendered or need subsequent care. All articles should be plainly marked with the name and address of the owner. Careful transportation, if desired, will be furnished.

The net proceeds of the exhibition will be placed at the disposal of the Ladies' Centennial Commission of Boston for the object which they have in charge. It is confidently hoped that this project will commend itself to the people of Boston and of the State.

The exhibition will be opened on Monday, at 4 P. M., with some brief remarks by the Rev. George E. Ellis, D. D., and the reading of a new poem on the Battle of Bunker Hill by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Special tickets for the opening day, two dollars. Admission on other days, fifty cents; season tickets, one dollar. Open from 9 A. M. until sunset.
